

Prominent Brazoria County Law Firm opens office in West Pearland

Angleton based Attorney Scott M. Brown recently announced the expansion of his practice to serve Pearland residents.

Garnered by years of experience, Brown's legal expertise has earned him the respect of the Angleton and greater Brazoria County community. Now, he brings his talents to the Pearland community where he continues to specialize in the practice of family and criminal law.

Family Law: Comfortable working with sensitive cases and emotionally charged situations, Brown strives to maintain a professional yet tough approach through meticulous preparation and zealous advocacy for all his clients. In situations of difficult divorces, Brown has consistently proven his willingness to fight tirelessly for his clients. By focusing on each client's individual needs, Brown acts quickly and decisively to make sure his client's rights and assets are defended to the full extent of the law. By working closely with his staff, he is able to move forward and bring an end to divorce cases in an expedient and fair manner. However, he is thorough in his research and works to find any available advantage for his clients.

In situations where the divorce involves child custody proceedings, he is sensitive to the needs of parents to find a mutually beneficial outcome without putting the children in the middle. For Brown and his staff, the interests of children are a priority in all family law and divorce proceedings.

In family law cases, he has extensive experience with all types of cases, such as child custody suits, child custody modifications, child support and visitation modifications, grandparent access and visitation, complex division of the marital estate, protective orders in cases involving domestic violence and child abuse, adoptions, parental terminations, paternity suits, suits involving Children's Protective Services, post-divorce partition and division of undivided property, prenuptial and postnuptial agreements and enforcement, asset protection, wills, probate court lawsuits, and professional estate planning.

Criminal Law: Brown is also considered an expert in matters involving criminal law. With a successful track record in litigation and trial experience, he understands each case is completely unique and requires individual attention.

As a litigator, he meticulously prepares each case for trial, striving to ensure it is presented in a manner most advantageous to each client's particular situation.

Many people are unaware that if there is a lack of probable cause or appropriate evidence, charges may be dismissed. By utilizing the services of an experienced and credentialed lawyer, Brown's clients are able to rest assured their legal defense is being handled carefully, fairly, and in complete confidence. He has experience in cases involving drunken driving, theft or burglary, domestic violence, probation violations, drug crimes, all types of misdemeanors, and felonies such as assault and battery, homicide, and sex crimes.

A graduate of Rice University and the South Texas College of Law, Brown grew up in Brazoria County and has lived in Angleton most of his life. He is recognized by the Who's Who of Brazoria County and was awarded the 2007 Texas Top Attorney. He currently serves on the Board of Directors for the Women's Center and attends Northway Baptist Church.

The Pearland office is now open and is located at the Texas American Title Bldg. just west of Hwy 288 at 9330 Broadway, Ste. 324. Brown's office considers cases by appointment only. To schedule an appointment, call 979-849-8526 or 281-336-0768. For more information, visit www.smbattorney.com
